RESCUE OF 28 FROM SWEDISH STEAMER TOLD

Wireless Direction Finding of Mauretania and Others Saves Crew of Boat.

SHIP GOES DOWN

Lifeboats Nearly Capsized By Heavy Ocean Waves.

ABOARD THE S. S. MAURETANIA, Nov. 20.—The liner Mauretania today was plowing through fast running seas to New York, her passenger list augmented unexpectedly by the dramatic rescue of 28 persons, one of them a woman, from the sunken Swedish cargo steamer Ovidia.

Summoned from her mid-Atlantic course by the distressed ship's S. O. S. flashed out at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, the Mauretania began a nine hour dash under full steam through heavy seas to reach the Ovidia.

Two United States vessels, the liners Endicott and America also responded to the call for help, but slower progress put them in the wake of the Mauretania, which covered a distance of 216 miles to the sinking vessel in record time.

28 ABOARD
The Ovidia reported she was leaking in the forward hold and in sinking condition with 28 persons aboard, among them Mrs. Carlsson, wife of the captain.

Upon receipt of the S. O. S. Captain McNeil of the Mauretania immediately altered the course of his giant vessel and plunged here at full speed in the direction of the sinking vessel. While her smooth bow cut boldly into the foaming and rolling sea, the passengers aboard remained in total ignorance of the change of course and the dramatic mission upon which they were engaged.

The Mauretania, Endicott and America conversed continually with the Ovidia by wireless. Officers and passengers of the ocean queen today were of the opinion that the Mauretania's quick dash to the distressed vessel must be credited largely to a marvelous piece of wireless direction finding.

The Ovidia, tumbling and tossing heppily in a waste of raging waves, was located without trouble by the speeding liner. Wallowing in the trough of mammoth waves and her decks awash, she was observed at times canting suddenly with a tremendous list as her cargo obviously slid about and shifted. Because of the weight of the water in the hold, the ship had sunk almost to its lower decks, leaving only the upper parts of the

George F. Grand-Girard?
A ND now 'G' G' (it ain't none less.)
If heard in realms of chewing gum
He tops the throne as king.
'Twas fifty two years back, I've heard,
That George first 'round here spoke
Was born someplace in County Brown,
I think known as Red Oak.

In schools around Ross County 'G' G' once parked his hal.
Learned all his dope 'bout rollin' pills
At school in Cincinnati!
You know he has a drug store here.
How long? Oh me, oh my!
Since 'G' G' sold first chewing gum,
There's fifty years shipped by.

And children: Bless my heart!

ALIBI IS DEFENSE

More Hunters Taken to Court For Law Violations.

Trial of Frank 'Fanny' Moore, First-ave, this city, on grand jury indictments of shooting with intent to kill and shooting with intent to wound, was started in common pleas court Thursday morning before Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Moore, an indigent prisoner, is represented by Attorney R. L. Criswell, appointed by the court, while Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Crist represents the state.

A jury to hear the case was obtained easier than any jury in common pleas court for a long time. The first 12 names read by clerk of courts, Ferd M. Pickens, were accepted by attorneys for both sides. Jurors are Mrs. Anna Stevenson, Mrs. Frances Winfowen, Mrs. Edna Dunkle, Mack Dowden, Mrs. Nelson Winfowen, William Adkins, Charles Trone, Harry Clifton, Mrs. George Hamman, Sr., Mrs. Otto Busick, Mrs. Smith Hulse and Ray Bowman.

SEVEN WOMEN
The women in the jury outnumber the men seven to five, another rare occurrence.

The case opened with the jury going to the residence of Harley Moore, First-ave, the place of the alleged shooting for which Moore is held. The first witness called was Mrs. Mary Crider Moore, the defendant's sister-in-law who was the victim of a bullet alleged to have been fired by Moore.

Attorney Criswell in a statement to the jury said that he will try to show that the bullet was not fired by Frank Moore. It was expected the case would go to the jury late this afternoon.

Cuyahoga GOP May Help White

Influential Member Says Delegation to Throw Votes to Democratic Side.

TO SPEED WORK

Ackerman Says Groups To Work For Good Cause.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—Rays of sunshine broke through the legislative clouds on Governor-elect George White's horizon today.

An influential member of the Cuyahoga delegation to the next regular session of the Ohio legislature, which convenes here Jan. 5, today said that enough Republican members of the delegation may line up with the Democratic minority to insure passage this winter of legislation that is sponsored, or approved, by the new chief executive of the Buckeye state.

Up until today it had been taken as a matter of course that the G. O. P. leaders, by reason of the Republican majority in both the senate and house, would be in a position to thwart the enactment of measures designed to carry out policies embodied in Governor-elect White's legislative program.

G. O. P. MAJORITY
On paper, the Republicans have a majority of four in the senate and 12 in the house, the political alignment being: In the senate, 18 Republicans and 14 Democrats; in the house, 70 Republicans and 53 Democrats.

Of the Republican senators, three are from Cleveland. In the house, 12 of the Republican members belong to the Cuyahoga-co delegation. If the trio of Cleveland G. O. P. senators and a majority of the Republican house members from Cuyahoga-co vote with the solid Democratic majorities, they can defeat G. O. P. legislative plans.

State Senator Joseph N. Ackerman, Republican, of Cleveland, today declared his willingness to co-operate with the incoming Democratic state administration in the enactment of legislation intended to further the best interests of the citizens of Ohio and improve conditions among the inmates and wards of the various state institutions.

He indicated that other Republican members of the Cuyahoga-co delegation to the legislature are similarly inclined. Ackerman said he plans to confer with Governor-elect White relative to the legislative situation.

The Cuyahoga-co solons comprise three Republican and two Democratic senators, together with 12 Republican and five Democratic members of the house. The five Cleveland senators are: Ackerman, L. L. Marshall and Lawrence H. Norton, Republicans, and former Lieutenant Governor William A. Greenlund and James A. Reynolds, Democrats. Ackerman and Marshall served in the senate during the last session. Norton was a member of the house two years ago. Greenlund and Reynolds are former state senators.

Ackerman said that it is the disposition of the Republican and Democratic members of the Cuyahoga-co delegation to "work together."

Senator Marshall is a candidate for president pro tem and majority leader of the senate. Ackerman is an avowed aspirant for the chairmanship of the senate finance committee.

Plans To Decorate For Christmas Formulated

With Christmas only five weeks away the Chamber of Commerce

Tuesday evening began preparations for decorating the city when President T. F. Jeffries appointed a committee to arrange for dressing the corner of Court-and-Main-sts in a style somewhat like it was last winter.

Decorations for the 1929 Christmas were received wide commendation throughout Ohio and was good enough to win praise from Billy Ireland in his "Passing Show."

NAME COMMITTEE
It is the plan of the group of business men at the meeting to arrange the decoration in much the same way as last year. Jeffries appointed R. L. Brehrer as chairman of the committee and selected managers of each of the local utilities companies as his aides.

They are Harry Dezman of the water company, C. T. Gilmore of the electric power company, Geo. Forst of the gas company and

EFFICIENCY OF TRAFFIC LIGHT COUNCIL TOPIC

Service Director Scores Attention Given Lights Which Are Not Efficient.

TURN ONE OFF

Pass Ordinance To Pay Bill During Short Session.

Service Director L. E. Miller requested city council to investigate the condition of traffic lights throughout the city which at different times do not function as they should. Miller not only blamed the lights for failure to operate properly but asked the council to conduct an investigation of the service being provided by the Southern Ohio Electric Co. repairing the lights.

He said that lights in different parts of the city have failed to work and that it has been several days at times before they have been repaired.

REPORTS LETTER

Safety Director J. Wallace Crist submitted a communication to council that he had received from the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce asking that the light at Washington and Main-st be removed and properly repaired so it would operate efficiently. The letter states that the light has never been efficient and that the best remedy was to remove it for repairs.

Crist announced that the light has been turned off awaiting the arrival of a representative from the plant from which it was purchased by the city.

The matter of the traffic lights was left in the hands of the service and safety directors by the council.

Immediate action was taken by council Wednesday evening to extend the fire alarm wires in order to reach boxes in N. Court-st since the former wires to these boxes were removed by the traction company taking down its span wires. At this time N. Court-st is without fire alarm service in case of a fire there.

This matter was brought to the attention of Safety Director Crist at the last meeting.

MOVE TO PAY BILL

An ordinance was passed under suspension of rules providing for an appropriation of funds from the general hospital fund in the amount of $394.49 to pay a bill which had been mislaid when the hospital was turned over to the city by the commission. The bill was for medical supplies authorized by the commission and had been filed away unpaid. The matter was brought to the attention of Safety Director Crist when the company submitted a monthly bill.

The council meeting was one of the shortest during 1930, business not requiring more than one-half hour.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—The state public utilities commission today rejected an application of the Valley Public Service company for permission to issue $58,000 in additional seven percent preferred stock.

McBRIDE CALLS FOR AID FROM BUSINESS MEN

Reluctantly Admits Prohibition Faces Crisis and Efforts Are Needed.

TO ENLIST HELP

General Conference Is Expected First of Year.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Reluctantly coming to the conclusion that prohibition is facing a crisis and that if it is to be saved energetic efforts must be put forth, dry leaders here have decided to launch a counter-attack against the very evident wet drift revealed in the elections two weeks ago.

Its aim, according to Dr. J. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, "is simply educational." He wants to enlist educators, business men, economists, and professional men generally in a national drive to "prohibition" to the country. Particularly the hope is to convince American business that prohibition is economically valuable and worth saving.

WANTS BUDGET
Dr. McBride has hopes of having a $5,000,000 budget for expenditure during the next year. Where it is to come from is not yet apparent.

All of the twenty-odd prohibition organizations such as the League, the W. C. T. U., the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Hygiene, and others, have been suffering for years for lack of funds. They started dropping off steadily Jan. 1. These conferences have had to do principally with where to get the funds to finance the national drive which Dr. McBride speaks of.

At the same time, there has been a steady growth of anti-prohibition organizations, well-financed and well-directed.

A number of quiet conferences have been held here by the dry leaders since the Nov. 4 election. More will be held between now and Jan. 1. These conferences have had to do principally with where to get the funds to finance the national drive which Dr. McBride speaks of.

GENERAL CONFERENCE
Probably before the first of the year there will be a general conference of dry leaders held here or in New York, to map out the plans for the great offensive.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20.—Joseph W. Marshall, president of the exchange national bank and prominent in the civic and business life of Pittsburgh, today announced that he had accepted the invitation of F. Scott McBride, director of the Anti-Saloon League, to serve on a national-wide committee whose purpose will be to popularize prohibition.

The rabbit supper of the Lutheran Brotherhood will begin at 6:30 p. m. Thursday with R. L. Bremer toastmaster for the evening. George Himrod is chairman of the cats committee.

CAUCUSES OF PARTIES ARE ON SCHEDULE

Beehive of Political Activity To Be Stirred Up Throughout State.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 20.—The beehive of political activity will be stirred up about the latter part of this month when both Republican and Democrat caucuses will get their heads together in caucus meetings, it appeared today.

Republican state senators-elect will caucus at the statehouse the first week in December and the G. O. P. state representatives-elect will caucus during the last week of this month, legislative experts believe.

The Democratic members of the senate and house are expected to hold their caucuses at the same time the Republicans hold theirs. With this renewal of legislative activity, observers today turned their attention to the probable status of the two houses of the assembly.

Senators L. L. Marshall, Cleveland; Earl Lewis, St. Clairsville, and Frank Whittemore, Akron, are being mentioned as candidates for selection as G. O. P. floor leader and president pro tem of the upper legislative branch.

State Representatives Arthur Hamilton, Lebanon, and Charles H. Jones, Jackson, are avowed candidates for speaker of the house. Hamilton, who was speaker pro tem and majority floor leader during the last session, became speaker at the close of the session when Speaker O. C. Gray resigned to accept appointment at the hands of Governor Myers Y. Cooper as state superintendent of banks.

Representatives Jones has been an outstanding member during several legislative sessions and held membership in a number of the most important house committees.

In the Democratic camp, Senators-elect William A. Greenlund, Cleveland; David A. DeArmond, Hamilton, and James A. Reynolds, Cleveland, are the most prominent of these mentioned for minority leader in the senate.

State Representative-elect William M. Goodwin, Hamilton, is being tipped as being likely to be selected as the minority leader in the house. He was a member of the house four years ago.

The positions of minority leader in both the senate and house will be of unusual importance during the coming session in view of the large representation of Democrats. In the senate there will be 18 Republicans and 14 Democrats. In the house there will be 71 Republicans and 57 Democrats.

HUNTERS URGED TO MARK BIRDS

NEW YORK.—Sportsmen hunting wild fowl and other game birds this season are urged by the American Game Protective Association to keep a close watch for bands on bagged birds and report those found to the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, D. C.

Bird-banding co-operators of the Bureau, in advancing its studies of North American waterfowl, have banded game birds at more than 50 stations in the United States and Canada, from the Arctic regions south to Louisiana and Georgia and from Maine to California, officials of the Bureau announced. The Biological Survey desires a report on every banded bird that is recovered, and requests the co-operation of sportsmen. The report should state the number printed on the band (including any series designation, such as A, B, or C) and the date and locality where the bird was obtained. In return, the Biological Survey will tell the person rendering the report where and when the bird was banded, and send interesting information on the application of the banding method to bird study.

Bird banding, as conducted by the Biological Survey and its 1,700 co-operators, furnishes a means of obtaining information regarding conservation measures. The banding records of the bureau have furnished much information on hunting and conservation problems, such as showing the regions that are visited by particular concentrations of birds. The solution of these problems means much to the perpetuation of the sport of wild-fowling, and sportsmen are accordingly urged to examine the ducks and other wild fowl in their bags and report banded birds to the Biological Survey.

JUMPY

Curb the Demagogues

WHILE the nation is in the "Buy Now" mood and in the mood for rendering relief to the unemployed and doing all that is expedient to the necessities of the time, it would be well for it to reflect upon the fundamentals underlying its present economic state.

Wage scales, working hours, labor-saving machinery, control of output to prevent over production, distribution, unemployment insurance, seasonal employment and division of labor are among these fundamentals demanding scientific study by industry.

One national danger, in the present situation, lies in political promises to care for the unemployed at public expense without wise restrictions, and another in attacks upon industries whose employing power must be maintained to provide jobs. Industrial profits must be created and maintained or there will be no wages for the workers nor taxes for public works to provide work for the idle. The burden of the man unemployed falls upon the man employed.

Although the evils of the dole system and the dangers of "trust-busting" are known to the people, congress and the state legislatures will soon be assailed with demands for doles or their equivalent and for legislation intended to cripple legitimate industry in its legitimate activities.

Nostrums of demagogues are dangerous at any time, but in time of economic chaos they are disastrous. Let those political doctors who claim to cure all ills defer their diagnosis at least until after the crisis has been passed.

California professor says college girls should not marry, proving all the comedians are not on the stage.

Charity

FAITH, hope and charity, but the greatest of these is charity, which succeeded after all else failed in renewing diplomatic relations on the gridiron between the Army and Navy.

For three years the forces of government, alumni interest and public demand could not budge the Mule and the Goat from their stubborn aloofness. They hadn't agreed, they wouldn't agree and they refused to try to agree. In other words, they wouldn't play ball.

And then came the business depression, putting millions out of work and in want. Dire conditions suggested a show for the benefit of the unemployed, and that idea suggested the greatest show known to the nation of shows, an Army-Navy game. The deadlock was instantly broken.

Their consent to play a game so late in the year and after a hard season displays on the part of the service teams a commendable spirit of charity and good will. Later, in the aftermath of a hard-fought contest in which each team has done its best, negotiations for resumption of the historic annual clashes on the gridiron will be taken up with a fair prospect of success.

When the Christmas season of good will draws near old contentions just naturally disappear and friendships take the place of enmities. It will be a propitious time for a "peace conference."

If the phone company ever runs out of wrong numbers it can get plenty off the income tax returns.

The woman who knows her paper from the outside line to the least with her domestic happiness. Instead of panning one of her want ads (can pay an argument) with her husband, she will find a chance to show him that she gets all the arguments she can lay the happen into some lady who is dragging her husband through the divorce courts or she can grill the dastardly critic who doesn't like a certain show as much as she does. She can voice an opinion about a new movie or throw more of a scare into her husband than if she tried to crown him with the go of it.

Women read the papers more carefully than men do. At least this is the consensus of opinion in newspaper circles where a circulation is kept on the tastes of people and the things that interest people.

GIRL UNAFRAID BY GLADYS JOHNSON

CHAPTER I

"KISS me, honey!"

"No! No, Neil..."

A silent struggle in the dark hall. Fear fluttering in the girl's heart—the thrilling fear which Neil could always inspire. His arms pinned her close, but she managed to twist her head so that his kiss fell on her cheek rather than her mouth.

It was exciting to have Neil want to kiss her, but the actual feel of his lips crushed on her own woke tumult in her mind, a surge of emotions which she was not sure were all pleasant.

The light of the street lamp, slanting through the glass panels of the front door did not reach this space under the stairs. Ardeth could barely make out Neil's face poised above her. A white patch, two dark holes—those were his eyes burning down into her own—a dark slash of mouth...

Something leaped in the girl's heart—something which was not all rapture nor yet all fear.

She began to struggle. "Neil, let me go!" They'll wonder where I am," she whispered frantically. "Kiss me again, then."

"No! No, please!" Twisting helplessly. "You shouldn't do this—waiting here for me—every night like this!"

"Why not? You like it. You're my girl, aren't you? Go on, say it." Ardeth, say you're my girl. She had begun to struggle wildly, but in silence. Fighting herself now, because it was exciting and pleasant to have Neil's arm about her.

"Please let me go! Neil, they'll wonder—somebody'll come out and find us!"

"Sh-h-h-h!"

The warning stifled her. She ceased to struggle, and Neil's arms grew tense about her as footsteps sounded on the wooden steps outside. The front door opened. Heavy footsteps going upstairs over their heads.

The girl smothered a nervous gasp, and in the dark Neil gripped her.

"It's Tom!" The girl's whisper. "I've got to go!"

The spell was broken. He did not resist when she drew out of his arms, but he hung on to one hand and asked—

"Want to go to a movie to-night?"

"No!" She was groping for something to say. "Have to wash out things for tomorrow."

"What?" came his quick, surprised whisper. "Who you going to?"

"To the girls' room. I've got to wash out things for tomorrow."

"What?" came his quick, surprised whisper. "Who you going to?"

"To the girls' room. I've got to wash out things for tomorrow."

"To the girls' room. I've got to wash out things for tomorrow."

had seen many such silent skirmishes as it had witnessed tonight.

Of course there was nothing really wrong. After all, she was Neil's girl. Some day, she supposed, they'd get married. That was what war marriages happened in Ardeth's circle of life.

You saw a boy you liked... or sometimes you didn't even like him—but there was no one else around at the moment. You went to a party with him—or to a movie. You went again. Pretty soon people began to expect you to be always together. Pretty soon you found people expected you to get married. So you did.

Ardeth was Neil's girl. For three years she'd been called his girl—before then, in fact—he'd gone with her. Ever since she'd come to live with Aunt Stel and found Neil Burke in the flat below.

But Neil shouldn't stop her a moment, how like Aunt Stel she would be in a few years' time.

Ardeth flushed hotly.

"You—you nasty little spy!" Her voice was low and it shook "Spy!" Bet leaped to her guns. "A person doesn't have to spy to see what a fool you make of yourself—you boy-struck thing!"

"Boy—struck?" Ardeth was stung into defense. "You're the boy-struck one! Hanging around the phone every night hoping—" "Stop it!" Aunt Stel leaped into the breach. Pointing the carving knife at her niece to emphasize her words. "Let me tell you one thing, my girl. If you—" "Oh, for God's sake!" Tom's bellow drowned them all out. "Shut up, can't you! How'd you expect a guy to read his paper with a pack of women yelping about?"

Crushing silence followed. For Tom was scarred here. Though only twenty-six years of age, he was the elder son and had been the mainstay of the family since Uncle Ed had died.

He transversed them with a glare before he returned to the sporting page.

With an air of injured innocence Ret subdued. Fan and Paul, the twins, who had brigaded up at the promise of a barrel, turned in disappointment to their bread and gravy and resumed their efforts to kick each other under the table, undetected. Aunt Stel set her face and gradually carved another portion of potatoes.

Ardeth went into the bedroom and pulled off her hat and coat. She hated these scenes coming at the end of a hard day's work. The depression which she always felt in this shabby house was creeping over her again.

"It's a wonder to me you wouldn't try and get over to your meals on time for once! Here I am, the inconsiderate people! Of all the things to face to do an overnight like this. It made her late for dinner—and she wasn't late. She liked it.

Something leaped in her heart at the memory of his arms about her there in the dark. But she wasn't sure she wanted Neil to kiss her like that.

A shrill voice lifted behind the door and Ardeth hurriedly entered. The blaze of the room was dazzling after the dark hall. For a moment the girl stood leaning against the door after she had shut it, blinking.

She could dimly see the others look up from the dinner table. But they could see her, and though none of the five could have expressed it in words, there was something vital about the girl as she stood there which turned her to a flame dancing across the common gray of the lives.

Long after she had passed out of their sphere each of them could recall Ardeth as she stood against the door. A golden girl—not even the bare of unshaded electric light could dim the radiance of her youth and dawning passion had lit a fire which played in her eyes. The hair which escaped from her hat shone with vitality and the cheek it caressed was the gold of a ripe apple. Tender, lovely—as she stood there, her face touched with dreams, her lips tipped with a smile.

you please, with never so much as a thank you."

The flame died down in Ardeth. She had the startled look of one rudely awakened.

"Oh... I'm sorry, Aunt Stel. I—I had to stay a little later. Mr. Huggson wanted us to check some new stock."

She was checked by a short from Bet, Aunt Stel's elder daughter, a girl a year younger than Ardeth.

"That's a hot one!" jeered Bet. "I suppose you think we don't know you were down there in the hall necking with Neil Burke! Honestly, I should think you'd be ashamed! I'd die with shame if anyone opened the door and walked in on you!"

A hard, prim little line came around Bet's young mouth when she said this. You saw, in that moment, how like Aunt Stel she would be in a few years' time.

Ardeth flushed hotly.

"You—you nasty little spy!" Her voice was low and it shook "Spy!" Bet leaped to her guns. "A person doesn't have to spy to see what a fool you make of yourself—you boy-struck thing!"

Color-Blindness May Be the Cause, for Red and Green Are the Most Troublesome Colors

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health
New York City.

MANY factors go to regulate the color sense. It takes a trained eye to distinguish between the various gradations of the primary colors.

The artist possesses a vivid color sense, because the eye is trained to fine distinctions. Workers in dyes and those who engage in such professions as interior decoration and other forms of art, must have a highly developed sense of color.

One who cannot distinguish between different colors is said to be "color-blind." Perhaps most of us are more or less color-blind, certainly when it comes to distinguishing between the many shades of many colors. Most persons can distinguish only a few of the many hues found in the universe. Men particularly are more or less afflicted with color-blindness.

Something which will be of general interest is the recent report from the Technical College of Berlin. It states that Professor Franz Weldert has invented a glass to be used in spectacles for the color-blind. The glass contains certain chemical elements which aid in detecting colors by those who suffer from lack of the normal color sense.

Certain colors of the spectrum are taken from the light rays passing through this glass. The colors which are absorbed are chiefly those which range in tones from orange to yellow, lying between the red and the greens. The spectacles make it possible to distinguish between colors by increasing materially the contrast between them.

To the color-blind red and green are the two most troublesome colors. Thus a glass such as this would seem to be a valuable contribution to many afflicted persons. With such an aid to motorists afflicted with poor color sense there will be little excuse for them to disobey the red and green signal lights and the flashes of the police car.

Persons who are in posts of responsibility anywhere on land or sea should have frequent tests of the eyes, both for failure of vision and for color-blindness. Many an accident can be averted by this precaution.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Darkened Rooms" the big attraction at the Cliftona theatre this week, is a combination of two of the stage or screen's most desirable qualities—an interesting plot, and good acting.

Sir Phillip Gibbs, a leading modern novelist, furnishes the basis for the interesting plot with his novel, "Darkened Rooms," which was published serially in a popular magazine about a year ago.

Evenly Brent furnishes the bulk of the good acting. This is her first starring picture and her fifth "all-talking" role.

In "Darkened Rooms" Miss Brent is seen and heard as Ellen, a chorus girl who is forced to take a job in the modest photographic studio of Emory Jago (Neil Hamilton).

Speaking of self-confidence, Mae Clarke, charming talkie featured player, holds a unique record established in Atlantic City, N. J., her home town, when she was 14 years old.

Mae was so confident of her ability to entertain that she sold the tickets for her own first show, her own "big moment."

It happened this way. Every summer in Atlantic City a carnival was held. Girls desiring to take part in the show sold tickets. Those who sold the most tickets got the best part, and Miss Clarke won.

POLICE GUARD WOUNDED COP

Gangsters Attempt to Take
Man's Life While He Lies In Hospital.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Additional guards were posted at the bedside of Police Sergeant James McBride at Westlake Hospital today after a gang of gunmen attempted to gain entrance to his room and finish the murder they tried three weeks ago.

McBride, near death from wounds suffered in an earlier attempt to kill him, is the state's leading witness in the murder trial of "Three Fingers" Jack White, reputed racketeer with known Capone affiliations.

Eluding five police guards at the hospital the would-be assassins climbed to the roof, removed a window screen and were about to climb into the fifth floor window when the screams of a nurse, Miss Helen McGuire, frightened the gang. As they fled a ladder leading to the roof clattered to the ground.

The second attempt on McBride's life was made eight hours after the release of Claude Maddox on bond. Maddox, a Capone lieutenant, was identified as the policeman's assailant in the shooting three weeks ago.

Ford Shows Faith in Future by World Wide Construction Program

Top—The Ford plant at Edgewater, N. J., opposite New York City. Center—The new plant at Long Beach, Cal. Bottom—A model of the plant being built at Dagenham, England.

THE Ford Motor Company's faith in the future of business, and especially in the future of the automobile, is evidenced by the fact that it is spending more than $60,000,000 for new plants and improvements in the United States and in foreign branches and associated companies.

The company has nine new plants under way throughout the world, while plans are being formulated for several others not yet announced. Wherever possible the new plants are being erected on sites accessible to both rail and water transportation so that, with each form of transportation supplementing the other, substantial savings will be effected.

Five of the new plants are in the United States, as follows:

Long Beach, California—This plant, recently completed to serve Southern California, has a capacity of 400 cars a day. Operating at capacity it employs 2,600 men.

Edgewater, New Jersey—The Edgewater plant, one of the company's largest assembly branches, has just been completed to serve New York City and surrounding territory. It has a capacity of 600 cars a day and employs 6,000 men.

Richmond, California—Work was started recently on a plant at Richmond, to be completed next year. It will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,400 men. It will supply cars to the San Francisco area.

Buffalo, New York—This plant will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,500 men.

Seattle, Washington—A site has been acquired and plans for a plant are being drawn.

A new manufacturing plant being erected at Dagenham, England, eighteen miles from London, to supplant the present works at Manchester, will be completed next year. It will be the largest automobile factory in the world outside the United States. Its capacity will be 200,000 cars a year.

An assembly and manufacturing plant is being built at Cologne, an assembly plant at Antwerp, and a service plant at Stockholm. Two branches—one at Perth, Australia, and one at Port Elizabeth, South Africa—were completed.

In addition the Ford Motor Company is spending several million dollars to increase the power capacity of the Rouge plant at Dearborn, Mich., and several million more in miscellaneous improvements.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 20.—Whether or not the rebuilt Louvain University will carry the inscription "destroyed by Teutonic fury; restored by American generosity" will be decided by a court of appeals here. Completion of the balustrade over the library has been held up by the long dispute which developed when the rector of the university objected to the inscription on the grounds, that it rekindled former war hatreds.

BHILIN, Nov. 20.—In quest of King Albert and diplomats of the King, the heralded coup to place Duke Otto on the Hungarian throne Thursday has been called off. Empress Zita, mother of the pretender, is said to have definitely made that promise.

Relief from Cures of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician states: "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called REZAL attracts water from the system into the large, dry, evacuated bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste, causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing a dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a REZAL Orderly night. Next day bright. Get at 25c at the nearest REZAL Hamilton & Ryan.—Adv.
